Willie Hearst who the newspapers still insist is not in it for the Democratic nomination for President is still getting instructions. His latest capture in Illinois and here is an account of how it was done. A dispatch says the Illinois Democratic convention at Springfield Tuesday was completely dominated by John P. Hopkins, assisted by John P. Quinn, of Peoria, who presided with a reckless display of gavel rule. Mayor Harrison was unseated as a delegate and left for home without entering the convention hall. Lawrence B. Stringer was nominated for Governor after the other candidates, Prentiss and Crolius, had withdrawn in angry speeches, declaring that the convention did not represent the Democrats of Illinois. John P. Hopkins, A. M. Lawrence, Ben T. Cable and Samuel Alschuler were elected delegates at large to the national convention. The delegates were instructed to vote for W. R. Hearst for President so long as his name is before the convention.

War in the far East has been quiet for some time but it still goes merrily on as the following bulletin shows: "Hard fighting between the Russians and Japanese has occurred in the vicinity of Vafangow. Gen. Stakelburg, in an official report to the general staff at St. Petersburg, says the Japanese forces made several unsuccessful attempts to turn the Russian army's flank, but the Russians maintained their position at severe loss. A report from Tokio says Lieut. Commander Ota and nineteen men were killed at Port Arthur by an accident to a Japanese torpedo boat."

Three Physicians Treated Him Without Success
W. L. Yancy, of Paducah, Ky., writes: "I had a severe case of kidney disease and three of the best physicians in Kentucky treated me without success. I then took Foley's Kidney Cure. The first bottle gave immediate relief, and three bottles cured me permanently. I gladly recommend this wonderful remedy." Sold by Wood & Campbell.

The long anticipated and much talked of hayride for last Wednesday night, which was to make glad the hearts of the young ones, and to take advantage of the sunless sky would give chance for the bashful lad to whisper his secret of love to the blushing lass was, much to the sorrow of all interested, postponed on account of parental objection.

He drove him off a short distance and returned to the house and procured his strichrine sprinkled a little on the dead hen and retired to await the consequences. When he came back he found Reynard stiff and cold in death and now his hens wander through the thickets and along the greens banks of Shepherd's Run in peace.

TOY GARDENING.
It is of All Sorts the Most Profitable and Reliable.

Our goal is to avoid all mimicry in gardening as we would avoid it in golf. Sometimes we do not mind being repetitions. "In gardening," we say, "the only thing which costs money in money or in mortification is for one to try to give himself somebody else's garden."

One of the reasons we give against it is that it leads to toy gardening, and toy gardening is of all sorts the most pitiful and ridiculous. "No true art," we say, "can tolerate any mimicry which is not in some way finer than the reality it simulates. In other words, imitation should always be in the nature of an amiable condescension. Whatever falseness, pretension or even mere frailty or smallness suggests of the eye, the ineffectuality of a toy is out of place in any sort of gardening. We do not actually speak of it as such, but we often find that the mere utterance of the words 'toy gardening' has a magical effect to suggest what the rest and to overcome with contrition the bad taste and frivolity of many a misguided attempt at adornment. At that word of exorcism joints of curiosity are created with scarlet geraniums, rows of white cabbages along the walk or drive like a cannibal's skulls around his hut, purple paint galls of penials on the scanty doorknobs, crimson wash kettles of veronica, antill rockeries and well sweeps and curbs where no well-arranged—G. W. Cable in Scribner's.

FIRST PIANO MAKER.
Two specimens of Cratofo's work built to order.

It was a harpsichord maker, Cratofo, in the employ of the Duke of Tuscany, who in 1711 made the first of his pianos. As a carter of Ferdinand de Medici he had a splendid collection of Belgian, French and Italian instruments to look after, and this undoubtedly aided him, though the model was so crude that the inventor could never have dreamed a monument would ever be erected in his memory. There are only two grand pianofortes of Cratofo in existence.

One decorated in gold and Chinese figures is in Florence, and the other is in the Cratofo-Brown collection in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Three documents attest the authenticity of this last instrument, which was purchased from Signor Hieronimo Martelli.

From this feeble beginning a long list of names could be mentioned of men who helped perfect the piano. But factories alone could never have achieved without royalty to encourage and virtuosos to play. Frederick the Great ordered five pianos for his palace, where they can be seen at the present day. Marie Antoinette was a patron of the art, and Clement in England and Mozart in Germany introduced the instruments, so it became a part of life. It was in Haydn's concert room that Chopin played, and our later friends, Liszt, Paderewski and others—Householder.

I've never any pity for concoced people, because I think they carry their comfort about with them.—George Eliot.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets
Better Than a Doctor's Prescript

Mr. J. W. Turner of Trubart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from a doctor. If any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach trouble, biliousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. FOLEY'S
KIDNEY CURE

Washington Letter

Secretary Cortelyou has extended his tour of inspection from the city of New York to Canada where he has been traveling for a few days. He returns to this city next Monday, and it is given out that then the momentous question of the Chairmanship of the Republican National Committee will be settled. There is a rumor that the President is determined to ask Cortelyou, on the ground that he wants a clean and honorable campaign conducted on a high plane, and can trust him. On the other hand the Senators who are old politicians and think they know it all, say that only the election of President Roosevelt was concerned. It wouldn't matter who ran the campaign, but that the larger and more important interests of the party must be looked after. In other words they contend that the prosperity of the country is bound up in the success of the Republican party, and that it would be fatal to allow the Democrats to again come into power. After all, as the time draws near for actual work to begin on the Panama Canal, the difficulties of climate, disease, etc., begin to melt away, if the expectations of those in authority are not dreams. Col. Gorgos, chief sanitary officer of the Panama Canal, has formulated tentative plans which will make everything safe and lovely. All villages in the zone will be put under military camp regime, and the inhabitants will be obliged to obey rules rigidly or face a dose of court martial. Lime to sweeten things is to be used in abundance; camps are to be drained; mosquito nets will be provided for the workmen to sleep under; stagnant pools are to be drained; and the whole zone is to be sprinkled with coal oil to utterly destroy malaria and yellow fever bearing insects. Better than all the rest, a hospital train will make daily trips across the isthmus to pick up those who have fallen in the ranks, and the cases will be segregated as much as possible.

Now that the President has decided that the new building for the Department of Agriculture shall not stand on the Mall in this city, in front of the Washington Monument, but that the plan for beautifying Washington as decided upon by the expert commission must be adhered to, there is nothing to hinder the work of construction, which will soon begin. The building will stand on the South side of the Mall, and will have 40 acres of ground around it. The whole facade will be 650 feet long. The main building, to be monumental in character, will have a front of about 150 feet, with a dome to be built of white marble or granite. This will contain the offices and the library on the top floor. The two structures for laboratory purposes will each be 250 feet long. Altogether the building promises to be one of the most imposing in the city.

Every day more and fewer Germans find their way to the White House, and, grasping the President by the hand, tell him how much he resembles their own dear Emperor in the Fatherland, and how glad they are to feel that after all they are at home in Republican America. One of the latest visitors was H. Von Kupper, editor of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, quite a paper in its way. Both expressed gratification at the cordial relations which exist between the two countries. President Roosevelt speaks German fluently, and sometimes, in the heat of conversation he drops into the language as naturally as Silas Wegg dropped into poetry.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and replaced and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are selected pipes take antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns, and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third of the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your household; it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale at Haydon's drugstore.

The oxygenated strength of the healing pills, combined with other well known kidney and bladder remedies, it is a sure and certain cure. New discovery gives immediate relief and permanently cures all kidney and bladder troubles. Sold by Haydon's Pharmacy.

Exciting Chase. Chief of Police Wood had a very exciting chase last Tuesday afternoon after the negro James Haydon, who is well known to the police in this section. Haydon was from Hustonville and was arrested several months ago in this city charged with petit larceny. He jerked away from the officer while his room was being searched for the lost articles and made his escape. Since then nothing has been heard of him. Tuesday Chief Wood received word from Lexington to arrest Haydon on a charge of grand larceny as it was believed he was in Danville. The officer located his man at the depot, and when the negro spied the chief he broke for the woods. A lively chase ensued with the odds in favor of the officer. A pistol shot directed over his head brought him to his senses and he came to a sudden halt. He was taken to Lexington and turned over to the authorities there. Haydon is charged with stealing $50 worth of clothes from a private residence in Lexington where he was employed. Danville Advocate.

For A Hundred Years For a hundred years or more Witch Hazel has been recognized as a superior remedy, but it remained for Dr. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, to discover that it was the best remedy for all the ills of the human body. It is a powerful antiseptic and when applied to such injuries causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your household; it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale at Haydon's drugstore.

Wakeup! Sleeplessness is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To. There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness. First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to be awake a long time before falling asleep, third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep. They mean that somewhere in the nerve force, somewhere in the brain, somewhere in the blood, something is radically wrong, and that the body is in a state of nervous exhaustion. To right it, take Dr. Miller's Nervine. Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Distention, Headache, Backache, Worry, Restlessness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of confidence, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity. Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miller's Nervine.

Frightened To Death by Snake.

A special from Somerset, Ky., says: A copperhead snake yesterday literally frightened to death Mrs. Henry Hargis, wife of a well-known farmer living at Dabney, near here.

Mrs. Hargis had gone from the house into a field on the farm where her husband was at work to take him a pitcher of water, and after remaining in the field with him for some time she started on her return trip to the house. When she had gotten almost out of the field where her husband was working, she felt something pulling at her dress from behind, but thinking it was only a briar or a weed that had got fastened to her dress she gave the skirt a bounce in order to extricate it from the supposed briar. Instead of that she flinched right before her gaze a long copperhead snake, one of the most poisonous of reptiles. The sight of the writhing reptile fastened to her clothing so filled her with fright that she dropped in a dead faint. She was seen to fall by her husband, who after seeing that she did not rise again, rushed to her side and asserted the cause, and just a little way from her side lay the huge reptile coiled for a strike. He dispatched the snake in short order and carried his wife to the house, where she was restored to consciousness again.

A physician was called, and upon thorough examination found that the reptile had not bitten her, but she walked like a drunken man with the delirium tremens, and would almost jump from the bed crying for them to keep the snake away and to take it out of her. A few hours later she died in awful agony, believing that the reptile was still clinging to her. The death of one of the most remarkable and saddest ever known in this section.

Do's Head Cut Off

Elgie Goodloe, of this city, in company with the Morgan boys, went five miles in the country Sunday after a squirrel dog. The dog belonged to the Morgan boys and had been loaned out for some time. They tied a rope around its neck and started home with it, but had not gone very far until the dog began acting strangely and appeared to be sick. It frequently fell down and rolled over and refused to go having to be dragged a portion of the way. On reaching home the boys concluded the dog had been poisoned and in order to give him relief mixed up some sweet milk with kerosene and attempted to pour it down his throat. Goodloe was holding the dog's mouth open and during a paroxysm of pain it closed with a vicious snap, biting him through one of its thumbs. A few hours afterwards the dog died and Goodloe, fearing it might have died of hydrophobia, hastened to a local physician and had his wound examined. The physician advised him to cut the dog's head off and send it to the Pasteur Institute at Chicago to ascertain whether it was affected with hydrophobia, which he did Monday morning.—Earlington Bee.

A Story Once Told by Lowell.

Something happened one day in James Russell Lowell's office which suggested the following: There was a time when the fastest sailing ships in the world were built in the shipyards of New England. About that time an American clipper and an English yacht were entering the harbor of Boston together, and there was a race between the clipper and the yacht, and the clipper won in the race. When the two vessels were in port the owner of the English yacht, a person of polished manners, came on board the American and very handsomely congratulated the captain of the clipper upon his achievement, which he said was all the more remarkable in view of the fact that it was the first time that his yacht had ever been beaten. The liberal minded old Yankee captain replied, "Well, your yacht is a curiosity. It's the first time the Polly Ann ever beat anything."

When Golf Was Serious.

Golf players complain that their favorite game is not taken seriously enough by the people, and they protest against the tone of levity in which newspaper paragraphs discuss the game. Thayer Evered, who has been taken seriously enough, as this excerpt from an ancient law document attests: On September 1, 1037, Francis Broune, son of John Broune, warden in Banff, was convicted by the baron or justice court of the burgh of breaking into the house of Patrick Shand and stealing therefrom "sinne golf balls," and the judges ordered the said Francis to be presentable and exact to the gallows of this burgh, and hang on the gallows at sunset to the death, whereof William Wat, depute of the said assize, gave doings.

The ordinary house rat will not fight if he can find his way into a corner, enclosed in the pit, with no chance of escape, the case is different. The rat will not only fight its enemy, but it will turn on lines of its kind, with which it is lunched. The trained rat dog will jump backward and forward, often times cutting over the rat, in avoiding its bite, and watching its opportunity, will catch the rat by the back, give one rough and ready twist to its spine, and then it throws the rat, dead or dying, aside and like a flash leaps into place for seizing and killing the next rat.

Russian Choral Singing.

Love of music, cultivated and encouraged by the Russians of olden times and chants of the services of the churches, is a trait of the Russian peasant. The choral singing of men and boys in some of the smaller hamlets is indeed so rich and finished in style as to be a constant source of wonder to all travelers—Social Service.

Medical Advice.

"What prompted you to rob this man's till?" asked the judge of the prisoner. "My family physician, sir," was the reply. "He told me it was absolutely necessary that I should have a little change."

A Suggestion.

Miss Snapper—Why don't you propose to her by telephone, then? Mr. Hoamley—Tut-tut!—Maybe she wouldn't know what to do with the telephone. She might think you were a lunatic.

Meely Gough.

Smith—I woke up last night with a horrible suspicion that my new gold watch was in some of the drawers of my dresser. I got up to look. Brown—Well, was it gone? Smith—No, but it was gone.
